Writer Reports On Trip To Hazard; Offers Suggestions For Improvement

JESSE STUART

With a schedule of work my doctor hardly approves, I accepted an invitation to be speaker at the 43rd Hazard High School commencement. This acceptance was partly for a selfish reason. I had never been to Hazard.

Ben Webb, coach of McKell High School, volunteered to go and the driving. When he arrived I had my talk prepared and was waiting. We were off.

At Paintsville we stopped for lunch near the state's Technical School. Here I learned we trained young men and women in technical skills in approximately 10 fields, another soon to be added.

I also learned the majority of these young men and women left Kentucky for jobs in industrial cities in the North. After training our young people at Kentucky's expense, we did not have positions for them. The majority left us, never to return.

Then, I made changes in the talk I was to give at Hazard High School. Here were as fine a looking people as to be found anywhere in the 47 states where I have traveled.

As we drove up U. S. 23 into Prestonsburg, then Allen and Martin and over KY 80, ideas thronged to me. In this econ-mically hardest-hit area in Kentucky were the finest workers in America. In this mountainous land, coal production was and is the basic industry.

Since mining had kept pace in modernization, it took fewer people now to mine more coal. With the increase in population, there was not much left to do except for our finest young people to move away.

These young Kentuckians do not want to go. They are uprooted from the traditions of the land of their birth. In these narrow-gauged valleys, there is not enough land to farm. Besides, these valleys are flood-swept, often without enough warning for the people to escape danger.

To build dams to correct such tragic disasters is what should have been done long ago. The people should not have to beg our Federal Government for this help. Someone should have been alert enough to have built these dams.

We stopped at Hindman Settlement School, where I saw fellow writer and classmate James Still. I met a few of the teachers here in rugged Knott County who had helped to send a higher percentage of high-school graduates to college last year than any county in the state.

By the time we drove to Hazard, I had completely changed my talk. The theme was why should we, at our state's expense, educate industrial technicians and teachers for the rest of the nation?

On our way to Hazard, I had observed the tragic mistakes of the past. People had tried to farm mountain slopes that pointed to the sky. How any animal, even the sure-footed mule, had retained footing to pull a plow was beyond me. A few of these slopes were still being farmed. Evidence of former fields upon these high slopes were marked by timber lines. People ambitious enough to farm such land must be among the world's best workers.

Hazard High School, famed for its great athletic teams, has high standards of teaching and learning that equally match. Here I found youth as fine as I had found anywhere in America, descendants of pioneers for the most part.

The old talk cast aside, I felt sure there was enough young potential in this one Hazard High School graduating class to plan new enterprises to hold our people. If we had the know-how (and we have) to do it for others, why not apply it for ourselves?

I mentioned I'd not seen one slope of reforestation, which someday could be utilized in pulpwood, paper industries, furniture. After my talk a man came up and introduced himself as Dewey Daniel, who told me he had reforested 27,500 acres. This man, I learned from others, has done and is doing much for this section of Kentucky.

Then came an unforgettable reception in a portion of a $300,000 gymnasium. We remained as long as we could. Reluctantly, we left the hospitable highlanders of great potential in a city and county where population declines. Such irretrievable loss makes us a much poorer state.

Unemployment On Decline Says Ritchie

The month of May represented a definite decline in initial claims for unemployment pay filed with the Hazard Employment Office, according to figures released by office manager W. A. Ritchie.

Records show that in May, the unemployment was caused by those claims dropped 502 from the record April applications that totaled 1721. This was in sharp contrast to the gradual rise since January of applications for unemployment compensation in this area.

Following is a month by month tabulation of compensation applications since the beginning of the year: January, 1043; February, 1242; March, 1261; April, 1721 (the peak); May, 1219.

Manager Ritchie said "it is expected that the claims load will continue dropping gradually."

He said that one reason for the decline in filings for unemployment pay could be that the weather has permitted several truck mines to re-open after a winter shut-down, thus giving work to many miners.

Ritchie further explained that only a small per centage of those filing were from out of state, contrary to one belief that much of the area unem-

Ritchie Appointed Platoon Leader

(FHTNC)—Larry Ritchie, son of Mrs. Cornia Ritchie of Route 2, Box 89, Hazard, has been appointed platoon leader of his recruit company at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center.

As a recruit petty officer he will wear a miniature rating insignia as a badge of authority during the remainder of his nine weeks of "Boot Camp."

He was chosen for the position in recognition of leadership qualities displayed while undergoing recruit training. He is scheduled to graduate June 21.

Williams Takes Part In Army Maneuver

Pfc. Odis Williams, son of Mrs. Sophia Williams, Red Fox, returned to Fort Lewis this week after participating in Exercise "Indian River," a grant maneuver testing the Army's new pentomic concept of battle.

Williams is assigned to the division's 1st Battle Group, 8th Infantry as a team leader of Company B.

New Band Room Pondered By City Education Board

The Hazard Board of Education is investigating the possibility of installing a new band room in the Hazard High School building and using the present one as a classroom.

At a meeting Monday night, for students set for two days in October, two in November, Christmas holidays from Dec. 19 to Jan. 5, plus the week of March 16-20, and out for KEA on April ninth and tenth. School will be out May 29, 1959.

In other action by the board, Mrs. Sophia Adkins, an elementary school teacher, was hired subject to placement. She has taught in Perry County for several years. Also hired was Mrs. Lester Eversole as secretary to the school superintendent.

W. D. Blevins was re-appointed teacher coordinator of the Hazard Vocational School at the board meeting, and the following persons were re-hired to the school staff: Almada Ritchie, June Lyons, Brant Wootton, Robert Dickson, Walter Prater, Raleigh Napier, John Calitri, Frank Napier, Damon Jones, Eugene Combs, Elbert Stevens, Jonas Reeves, Samuel Gail Burke, Leslie Grigsby, and Julian Fyfe.

Roy Eversole was elected treasurer of the city school board.

Hardburly Store Broken Into

Thieves broke into the Hardburly Commissary and post office sometime last night, in industrial policeman Curt Richie reported. Details were lacking as to what was missing.

Richie's Condition Listed As Fair

State Police said the condition of Burdon Richie, wounded Sunday in a gunfight in Letcher County, has changed from serious to fair.

Burdon was taken to a Benham hospital after being wounded by a shotgun blast in a battle that took the life of his brother Glenn.

Bill Sexton was placed in the Letcher County jail charged with murder, shortly after the shooting.

Combs Honors Capt. Berryman

Hazard Mayor Douglas Combs has presented Capt. J. E. Berryman, Lexington, a set of gold cuff links in recognition of his services to the city of Hazard and to the Hazard Fire Department.

Capt. Berryman is conducting a training program for the local fire department. He started the program in 1948. The program is credited to the Hazard Area Vocational School.

Daniel To Visit Pres. Eisenhower

Dewey Daniel, president of People's Bank and a member of the Republican National Committee, will breakfast with President Eisenhower June 19 while in Washington, D.C. at attending a Republican campaign school.

He will leave Hazard June 15 for Washington. While there, he and other Republicans attending the campaign school will be entertained with a reception at the home of Vice President Richard Nixon.

Daniel is chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Kentucky.

Bible School At Hindman Church

Vacation Bible School will be held in the Hindman Methodist Church June 23rd to June 28th. Each session will begin at 1:00 o'clock in the afternoon. There will be Bible Study, handicraft, games and refreshments. A competent staff of teachers has been obtained. Everyone between the ages of 4 and those entering the 8th, 9th and 10th Grades are cordially invited to share in the school. Commencement will be held in the Church sanctuary Sunday Evening, June 29th at 7:00 o'clock. A. L. Osborne is pastor of the church.

First bids on surfacing of the Grapevine road had to be thrown out, according to state representative Chester Duff, because of excessive basework necessary in preparing the road for surfacing.

The amount of basework required on the road when it was first opened for bids was underestimated, Rep. Duff said.

New bids will be taken in July on the project for the 12-mile road, which runs from Clemons to the railroad crossing at Chavies. At that time, contracts and work orders will be let and construction should begin around July 15. This assurance came from the governor's office in Frankfort, Rep. Duff said.

Perry Rabies Clinic Set For June 23rd

The Perry County Health Department will begin its annual rabies clinic June 23, with Dr. Beecher Scutfield serving as directing veterinarian. Locations will be announced.

Dr. Scutfield, formerly of Perry County, has been the director for the clinic for the past four years.

So far this year, according to Mr. Raleigh Johnson, administrative assistant to the local health department, there have been no reported outbreaks of rabies in Perry County. He said three dogs have registered positive results after being analyzed for rabies, and one rat is now being examined by the State Health Department. There have been no rabid foxes reported, he said.

Mr. Johnson gave several suggestions on how to keep down the initial infection.

On Tuesday morning at 9 a.m., a three day training program sponsored by the Hazard Police Department, and conducted by FBI Agents Frank Grubbs, and Addison Kincaid of the FBI Office at Louisville, was begun at the City Auditorium.

John Quinlan, local FBI agent opened the program with remarks of appreciation of the cooperation among the law enforcement agencies in this area, and introduced the heads of the various agencies represented.

Mayor Doug Combs, informed the group of the advancements made in police efficiency in the Hazard area, and stressed the importance of continued modernization of the City Police Department, and of the cooperation among the law enforcement agencies.

This training project consists of a hypothetical case of a burglary of a local store. This crime is handled by those in attendance from the first complaint of the crime to the conviction of the subject. Chief Bob Heath appointed Officer Bud Luttrell, of the Hazard Police Department to be the officer in charge of this investigation. Officer Luttrell appointed Officer Smith of the Hazard Department, Detective J. E. Combs, and Detective Mahoney, both of the KSP, Hazard, to conduct the investigation. Crime photographer Hal Cooner in cooperation with the investigating officers took photos of the crime scene.

Through clues located during the crime search the subject was identified, located, apprehended and convicted.

Those in attendance included Chief Bob Heath, Hazard Police Department; Sheriff Paul Amis; Sgt. Willard Mitchell, Post Commander; Sgt. James Cox, Assistant Post Commander, KSP; former Sheriff Bill Cornett; and members of their respective departments. Also represented were the Sheriff Office of Knott County; th Whitesburg Police Department. Det. Begley, of the L-N RR.

Area Students Attend Pikeville

Two Perry Counties and 16 from Knott County are included in the record summer enrollment figure of 603 at Pikeville College.

From Perry are Mrs. Russell Compton, Hazard, and Willis Ison, Telford.

Knott County students include Geneva Amburgey, Hindman; Orevia Amburgey, Hindman; Jesse Austin, Litt Carr; Jesse Back, Spithsboro; Laura Lee Francis, Litt Carr; Adam Fugate, Talcum; Della Gibson, Pinetop; Lora Johnson, Garner; Reta Mae Moore, Raven; Mary Ruth Prater, Hindman; Mildred Risner, Hindman; Bertchel Roberts, Hindman; Matilda L. Mrs. Alta Bonta Enjoys Retirement By Painting-A Life-Long Desire

"Retire To—Not From" makes the best rule for a happy and successful retirement. Nobody wants to retire to emptiness and an all-done-for feeling. This is the thought of Mrs. Alta Bonta, and she is doing something about it. Mrs. Bonta is a retired school teacher. Having taught school in the lower grades for the past thirty-four years, she has helped to start hundreds of children on the path to the future. The success stories that her pupils tell are heartwarming, and they attribute much to getting started in the right direction under Mrs. Bonta's teaching.

However, those days are now just pleasant memories. Mrs. Bonta, or "Babe" as she is known to her many friends, is one of the busiest women in her neighborhood. She is still active in her church work and other civic activities. She spends the remainder of her time with her art work, a life-long ambition of hers and something she has looked forward to these many years. She has a natural talent for art, and has studied art from Famous Artists of Westport, Connecticut. She has painted several outstanding compositions in oil and water colors. This coming summer, she plans to visit the Oriental Artists at Horseshoe, North Carolina.

Though "Babe" has been retired for the past three years, she still leads a rich, full, and useful life with her painting and her outside interests and making plans for the days after her husband, Herbert J. Bonta, Rural & Residential Sales Supervisor for the Hazard District of the Kentucky Power Company, will retire in 1959. Mrs. Bonta says that she doesn't have time to be concerned over growing old or the minor aches and pains that some people have after retirement.

Mrs. Bonta is Past Matron of the Elizabeth Chapter 145 Order of Eastern Star and Past High Priestess of Hazard Shrine No. 11, White Shrine of Jerusalem. She has a lifetime membership in the National Parent Teachers Association.

Advisory Board To Meet Here

Members of the Southern States Hazard-Hindman Advisory Board and their wives will meet June 19 at 6:30 p.m. in Hazard to make plans for their local 1958 Southern States Cooperative annual membership meeting. They will also nominate persons to fill vacancies occurring this year on the Board. Elections will take place at the membership meeting to be held later this year.

Members of the local Advisory Board that will retire this year are: Roscoe Turner, of Avawam, and Gordon Jones, of Wootton. Other members of the local Advisory Board are: Dreyfus Brashear, of Viper; Corbett Grigsby, of Bulan; Claude Patterson, of Rowdy, and Burley Barger, of Bowlingtown.

Scott Stamper In Army Exercise

SFC Scott Stamper, son of Mrs. Emma Stamper, Hazard, recently participated in a maneuver by the Army called Exercise "Indian River." The exercise was designed to test the Army's pentomic concept of battle. Stamper is a weapons Squad leader with the Second Battle Group, 47th Infantry.

Tendency Toward Smaller-Size Cigarette Noted In U. K. Study

U.S. cigarette manufacturers have shown a recent trend toward production of a smaller-size cigarette.

That's one of the findings of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station's agronomy department. Drs. R. B. Griffith and G. T. Webster recently concluded an 18-month study of American cigarettes to determine cigarette size and composition. Full details of the study are in the current issue of the Kentucky Research quarterly, off the press today.

Here's a rundown on the study's findings:

1. Cigarette size—circumference (distance around the cigarette)—had a tendency to decrease during the period of the study (July 1956-January 1958).
2. Introduction of the flip-top box brought out in 1956 reduced the amount of tobacco used in each cigarette. This box is smaller than the king-size "soft" package; its cigarettes are shorter and not so big around.

3. Some king-size and regular cigarettes (non-filter types) have decreased in circumference.
4. Cigarette companies now are able to use materials which formerly were considered waste, including stems, etc.
5. Manufacturers can control or regulate the nicotine content of cigarettes.
6. Manufacturers can vary the blend in numerous ways, depending on the tobaccos available and the companies' desires, to end up with a cigarette of desirable smoking quality.

The 18-month study, conducted to determine average composition of American cigarettes, was financed jointly by the Kentucky Department of Economic Development and the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association. The study indicated, however, that owing to the rapidly with which manufacturers have changed their manufacturing processes, etc., the results of the study are true only for the period of the study.

Here are the detailed findings by category:

Cigarette size and quantity of tobacco: The standard, traditional cigarette—called the regular—is 70 millimeters long (about 2.7 inches). The king-size regular (non-filter) was standardized at 85 millimeters and contained about 15 percent more tobacco than the traditional regular. In 1956, the king-size filter cigarette, (a relative newcomer to the trade) was 85 millimeters long and contained more tobacco than the regular-size cigarette. Circumference of most cigarettes, regardless of length, was about 26.5 millimeters.

Then, manufacturers increased the filter length 5 to 7 millimeters in the king-size filters, and reduced the circumference. As a result, king-size filters in 1957 had from 3 to 6 percent less tobacco than the standard regular-size cigarette. But, it contained essentially the same quantity of tobacco as smaller-diameter, regular-length cigarettes bought near the end of the study. This means that diameters of the regulars in some cases also had been reduced during the study.

Introduction of the flip-top (hard-box) type reduced sizes still more. Cigarette lengths went down to 80 millimeters, and the circumference was decreased to as low as 25 millimeters.

This combination—filter-end, flip-top box cigarette which was smaller around and had a shorter "tobacco-column" length—resulted in use of 14 to 19 percent less tobacco than used for an equivalent number of the traditional regular cigarettes.

Reconstituted tobacco—This process, plus the use of stem materials "direct," was probably responsible for the major increase in number of cigarettes that could be produced from a pound of tobacco prior to 1957. However, at the start of 1957, the use of the flip-top box (with its shorter, smaller-around cigarettes) took over as the main reason for increased "manufacturing efficiency."

The reconstitution process consists of grinding tobacco into fine particles, forming them into a continuous sheet and then cutting them into tobacco shreds. Three of the companies checked in the study were found to use the process on a relatively helpful because it uses parts—principally stems—that formerly were wasted. It also allows manufacturers to control their blends (mixtures) more exactly. Third, it makes for "cigarettes homogeneity"; this is a technical way of saying the different types of tobacco used in a single cigarette are distributed more evenly throughout the length of that cigarette.

Largest quantity of reconstituted material was in filter cigarettes, though it was also found in significant amounts in regular and king-size (non-filter) types. The use ran from one to 20 percent, depending on brand and date of manufacture.

The study pointed out that use of reconstituted materials is considered a dilution process. Stem materials, for instance, are very low in nicotine content; adding them, (in the reconstitution process) dilutes the main body; thus, stems added to tobacco stronger and higher in nicotine content (than actually desired from the manufacturing standpoint) reduce the nicotine content of the finished product.

Some companies NOT using the reconstitution process, however, use stem material "direct." This use varied from two to 15 percent of the material formerly considered waste, the study said.

Blend Composition: There was a tendency toward increase in the use of reconstituted tobacco and in direct utilization of stem material, the study disclosed. Likewise, use of TURKISH (aromatic) tobaccos tended to increase.

Consistent trends in use of burley and flue-cured tobaccos were NOT obvious, the researchers said. Company preference seemed to control the use of these two types. One company started using, during the study, a larger amount of burley while another company reduced its burley content.

Most companies averaged about 30 percent burley in cigarettes, but the total use-range was from 20 to 40 percent. Flue-cured varied from 30 to 50 percent of the total weight of the tobacco.

Chemical Properties of Cigarettes—In general, the tested cigarettes ranged from 1.8 to 2.4 percent nicotine. Companies apparently were carefully regulating the nicotine content by varying their blends. Sugar content varied among companies but in the overall test remained at a fairly constant average.

Quality of Tobaccos In Filter Smokes—No evidence was found in chemical or separation studies to support the common belief a stronger, lower-quality tobacco is required for production of filter cigarettes, the study noted.

League of Ky. Sportsmen's Annual Convention June 14

Between 300 and 400 delegates, alternates, and visitors are expected to attend the League of Kentucky Sportsmen's annual convention to open in Ashland on June 14, J. M. Smith, Franklin, League president, has announced.

The three-day session will be highlighted by an address by Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, President of the National Wildlife Management Institute, Washington, D. C., on Saturday night. Business sessions and entertainment features will be conducted the second day and on the final day a new president and nine vice presidents will be elected.

The delegates will come from throughout the state and will represent a membership of 40,000 sportsmen who are affiliated with the League. Each club is permitted to send a delegate and an alternate.

Panels on various phases of wildlife conservation will be held Sunday afternoon, on the second day, and a tour of Greenbo Lake and a fish fry will round out the activities for the day in the late afternoon.

On Monday morning reports from the League officers, Commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and chairman of the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission will be heard. Following this new officers will be named. In addition, the "Sportsman Of The Year" will be awarded a plaque. Governor A. B. Chandler has been invited to make the presentation.

Monday night a banquet will bring the meeting to a close. Headquarters for the convention will be the Henry Clay Hotel.

Advancing Education in Kentucky

—By—

Superintendent of Public Instruction

In March of 1957, I named an advisory committee of school superintendents, architects, contractors and lay citizens to study ways of effecting economies in schoolhouse construction. Following several meetings of that group, a conference was held in Lexington in June, 1957, devoted to a consideration of every aspect of school construction from plumbing to insurance. Its purpose was to bring to light every possible aspect of construction procedures with an eye toward alleviating the critical classroom shortage by finding economies in construction.

As a result of studies made by the advisory committee and of the research conducted by its members into the problems of construction costs, we are now in a better position to find ways of cutting construction costs. More than that, we are in a position to get more for each school building dollar expended for new classroom facilities.

After studying and discussing ways of getting more for our tax dollars this committee discovered several ways of economizing. Such a simple thing as changing the swing of a classroom door permits impressive savings when added to similar planning techniques. The committee made recommendations of this type of the State Board of Education.

Based on the recommendations of the advisory committee, the State Board of Education adopted new school building regulations that pointed toward economies. Among other items the regulations provided for lower ceilings, lighting secured by a combination of natural and artificial means, changes in plumbing codes, and modification of regulations pertaining to specific instructional areas and shops.

Recently, the newspaper carried accounts of a school in Louisville and one in Jefferson County that were contracted for considerably below the estimated cost. One of these was estimated to cost $924,000.00 and the actual bid was $690,774.10 or $233,000.00 less than the original estimate.

Changes in State Board of Education regulations and recommendations of the advisory committee on schoolhouse construction have played a large part in effecting these economies. It should not be expected that all of the schools being constructed at present throughout Kentucky or planned for construction in the near future are going to cost a great deal less than estimates. But I don't believe it is unreasonable to assume that estimates are going to be less in many cases for schools this year over last.

For one thing, contractors are quoting better prices and architects are striving for economies in design and planning. One story floor plans are cheaper and just as effective in most cases—especially for elementary schools. Also new improved roof structures are being used that are less expensive and better planning is eliminating waste space thereby devoting more of the building to instructional use.

Obviously, from this good news, now is an excellent time to construct schools. During the past four months, there have been a number of proposals made in Congress in an effort to find some means of dealing with the current recession but as yet no program other than the Federal Highway Program has been acted on by that body. I recently appeared before the House Subcommittee on Education and testified to the need for a school construction bill as a means for alleviating the present economic recession. Other educators have also made sound arguments on the behalf of a federal school construction bill at this time. We believe that building schools now will help to solve the unemployment problem and furnish badly needed classrooms at very advantageous prices.

Cost of TB Care Drops In VA Hospitals

The cost of caring for tuberculosis patients in Veterans Administration hospitals dropped by $38 million during the past three fiscal years, VA said.

Dr. W. B. Tucker, VA director of tuberculosis service in Washington, D.C., said the reduction can be attributed in large part to improvement in treatment for the disease, much of which resulted from findings of VA research.

Newer drugs and other treatment for tuberculosis have shortened periods of hospital stay for TB patients, he said.

If the average daily TB patient load in VA hospitals had remained at the 1954 level, approximately $38 million more would have been needed for hospital care of VA TB patients than actually was spent over the past three fiscal years, Dr. Tucker said.

For the past 12 years, VA has conducted a joint research project with the Armed Forces which is the world's most extensive study of drugs against TB. Involving some 37,000 tuberculosis patients, the study has produced findings leading to present use of TB therapies by the entire medical profession.

Dr. Tucker said success of this study has shortened the duration of hospital stay for TB patients, reduced the likelihood of disability from the disease, and speeded the decrease in number of beds required for veterans with TB in VA hospitals.

He said the average duration of hospitalization necessary for successful treatment of TB formerly was about two years, while TB hospitalization today usually is necessary for less than one year. TB patients today usually are able to return to productive employment soon after hospital discharge, Dr. Tucker said, while in the past the patient discharged after TB treatment had to undergo prolonged rest at home and gradually build up his strength.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that General Telephone Company of Kentucky did on June 2, 1958 file with the Public Service Commission of Kentucky at Frankfort, Kentucky, a revised schedule of rates to become effective for telephone service supplied on and after July 1, 1958 unless suspended by order of said Commission. Said revised rates for the Hazard, Kentucky exchange are as follows:

for
was?

Let me tell you what I saved when I drove a new Plymouth...then bought one!

Just like a lot of other people, I was putting off buying a new car... even though we sure needed one. Then I found out what my Plymouth dealer was offering in the way of low prices and really big trades.

Mister, when I saw what I saved I knew there was no use putting off any longer! Got more for my old car than I believed possible. (Plymouth dealers need used cars and can sell all they get!) Got a terrifically low price on the new Plymouth... and choice of models besides... hardtops, sedans, convertibles, wagons.

And I saved a cool $140 on the ride alone! Plymouth's top-luxury ride, Torsion-Aire Ride, is standard at no extra cost, while you have to pay up to $140 for the top ride of competing "low-price 3" cars.

What's more, I got the car that proved it can save me gasoline, by winning the 1958 Mobilgas Economy Run. A car with Silver Dart Styling that is so far ahead right now it will still be worth more when I trade. With the kind of easy handling that makes every minute of driving a downright thrill! The stamina to stand up without nagging adjustments and big repairs... a car as much better built as it is better looking!

Any wonder I quit waiting? Take my tip... get your Plymouth bargain right now.

Today's best buy...tomorrow's best trade... Plymouth

Fellows, just another reminder in regard to you that have not bought your hunting and fishing license for 1958. June 19th a new law will go into effect that will raise your fishing license to $3.00 plus 25 cents clerk's fee. Your hunting license will be increased only 25 cents clerk's fee. Junior hunting license will be increased 15 cents clerk's fee. If you want to save yourself some money on this years license. I would suggest that you get them now. Fishing and deer license was the greatest change.

OVER THE COALS

Yes folks, I have been raked over red hot coals, I do mean they were hot, it seems that one of Jim Lunce's fishing buddies related a trip that they made not too long ago. It was all because Jim had caught the biggest fish which was a 16 pounder on light tackle, a mud cat. Jim, my hat is off to you. I am sorry that I disappointed your fishing pal, will not mention his name because I am afraid that you might jack him up over even mentioning. It was well worth mentioning when a man gets a fish this big on spinning tackle. Here's hoping you and your gang continue to have good luck.

UP A TREE

It seems that Boots Steele has taken up fishing since the pond up near Jeff has opened better known as T. G. Bingham pond. Not too far from Glomawr Bridge. Understand that Boots did right well for the first couple hours, it seems that fish quit biting near him, so Boots rared back to cast his bait to far away places on the other side of the lake, where did it land? I was told in the top of some near by trees. Boots, I would say that then you started cat bird fishing.

A DUNKING WE GO

Says Joe and Jim Caudill as they were fishing near Lock 13 few days ago. They were having some real good luck using surface baits, both these boys carry a little weigh around with them. It happens that they get a small boat from some of their friends in that area. Joe thinks that he stepped too quick to one side of the boat. Wham bam before they knew it they were in the water before to swim out. They had caught a good string of bass which they saved, but lost I would say at least two hundred dollars worth of tackle, which they are trying to locate. Of course with these rains and muddy water for past few days it will be hard to do. As a suggestion to all you fishermen that I learned from this misfortune, that Joe and Jim both had their tackle boxes closed. I would suggest that if such an accident as this should ever happen to you, the recovery of your tackle will be much greater. After all it seems to me that ones bad luck could bring good luck to others, provided you heed their suggestions and warnings. I know we all make these same kind of mistakes of shifting to one side of a boat to the other. I would say always look over your boat to see just how much moving around you should do. Another thing is when fish are biting, it will be too late to take inventory of your equipment. I know it is hard to get the type of boat that you will need each time you go fishing. Especially down that way.

CAUGHT WITH A STUB

Yes, this is what happened to Ward Napier not too long ago, holding a stub of a very good fishing rod, with a very good fish on the other end of his line. Knowing Ward as I do. I know that he is a very good fisherman, along with his buddy Sherman Jones, they catch their part of fish. They were fishing on Lake Cumberland. Ward gets this strike, sets the hooks and is playing his supposed to be catch. When suddenly his rod snaps about two feet from his handle. He states that he does not know what to do. Because he realizes he does have a good fish hooked. He tried to do all he thought to bring him in, without the action of a rod, it was impossible. Ward, I dare say that you could have made a record catch on that fish. The rod you were using was one of the best. It's too bad that things such as this would have to happen. Of course that is always the time that such good things must come to an end. I know how you felt.

NICE SEEING

You Charlie Noe Wooton, which he used to operate the Hazard Herald, glad to know that you like this column, also like to come back and visit with us. Charlie is working with the Cincinnati Enquire Paper. Charlie, I am sure that it must be quite a difference of the two papers. Glad to hear you state that you are glad to be getting the paper that you broke your eye teeth on.

Doug Waddell up Detroit way, it was nice seeing you again. Boys, Doug hails from over Knott County way. He likes to fish along with that good wife of his. Also to you Ambrose Deaton from over Ohio country way, to you Herman Wilson from up Michigan country way. Nice seeing all of you also to you many others that I did not get your names and where you are now located. I find from my talks with you that you would really like to be living in this area again. It is too bad that the situation does not allow you to be among the friends and loved ones that you so much desire.

ON THE PROWL

Again has been that catfish man from up Lothair way. None other than James Cole who returned from a trip in below Cumberland Falls, with a thirty and a thirty five pounder, along with many more hardly that big, he says that he ran into many things on this trip. He is still planning on getting one around seventy five pounds.

Sam Garnett and Mack Smith reports a nice string of bass caught at Conley Bottom. Mr. and Mrs. Kel Gay from over Blue Diamond way reports good catch from Dale Hollow using a darter. The good wife of Pat Quinsberry says that her old man has really fetched in the fish. Boys, he has been getting them from our stream, using a lucky 13. Since I have yet to sink a tush in some fresh fish this spring, think I will sorta pay a casual visit to some of these lucky fisherman. Might catch them frying.

"Crow Shoot" And Calling Contest

The 20th Annual Nation Crow Shoot and the National Crow Calling Contest will be held in Frankfort, June 20-21-22 by the American Crow Hunters Association. Registration of entries will be Friday, June 20. Drawing for shooting areas will be at 9:00 a.m. Saturday and the shoot will start at 11:00 a.m. and at 2:00 p.m. The person bringing in the largest number of crows killed will be the 1958 National Champion. The National Crow Calling Contest will be at 6:00 p.m. Following by the Victory Banquet where the trophies will be awarded the winners of the various events and divisions.

Commissioner Earl Wallace has announced the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will cooperate to make this national event a success. Evidence of this was shown by the very successful National Crow Shoot held in Williamstown in 1948 and the various state crow shoots held since then.

The National Doubles Shoot will be held Sunday, June 22, and here the shooters hunt in two-man teams for three hours and the team bringing in the most crows killed is announced the National Doubles Champions of 1958. Last year, the National Singles Champion was L. Wm. Semago with a 15 crow kill. The National Doubles Champions were L. Richard Clark and L. Edward Flack. All three men are members of the U.S. Air Force. The National Crow Calling Champion was Karl Uharik. Further information can be obtained by contacting the American Crow Hunters Association, 808 Madison Avenue, Covington.

Gov't Spends $32,559 For Carrying Out Conservation Practices In Knott County

The Agricultural Conservation Program is not a subsidy, handout, rural relief or income supplement program, but it is an incentive program to get more conservation on individual farms needed in the public interest than would be possible if farmers were to depend entirely on their own resources.

It is a cost-sharing program in which farmers as participants, pay a substantial part of the cost of the practices in money, their labor, use of their own farm machinery, or in materials. It is a democratic program in which most of the planning and operation is in the hands of farmers, administered by county and community committees, all farmers elected by their neighbors.

It is teamwork operation between agencies of the Department of Agriculture, State and local government, and other citizens. It is a necessary means for helping farmers to establish systems of conservation farming that put into effect better soil and water management and use.

Recognizing the need for the protection of our land and water resources for the production of sufficient food and raw materials to meet future need of the nation, Congress appropriates funds to share with farmers the cost of carrying out needed soil and water conservation measures.

Farmers Here Participate

What are Knott County farmers doing about their responsibility in conserving our soils? Let's take a look at the records for the past year as compiled by the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office.

During the year 1957, farmers in our county earned $32,559 by carrying out needed conservation practices on their farms. $18,323 was earned by farmers in carrying out pasture practices which included establishing permanent vegetative cover for soil protection or as a needed land-use adjustment; improvement of an established vegetative cover and liming farmland to permit the use of legumes and grasses for soil improvement and protection. $10,225 was used in soil and water conserving practices such as construction of livestock wells as a means of protecting vegetative cover, drainage practices and forestry practices. $825 was used for building up land damaged by flood.

With ACP assistance, 699 acres of new pastures were established by the use of recommended seedlings of grasses and legumes; fertilizer and lime as determined by soil tests. 68 acres were spread with 2 ton per acre lime and 449 acres were spread with fertilizer of the kind soil test showed were needed.

Forty-nine rods of tile were laid for draining wet land so that it could be used for agricultural purposes. . . . 25 livestock wells were constructed, as a means of protecting vegetative cover.

These statistics do not mean that every farmer in Knott County carried out conservation practices last year, but 414 farms did share in the county allocation and took seriously their responsibilities for helping to conserve our soil and water resources.

Cabbage Worms: Use metaoachlor or rotenone.
Cut Worms: Treat base of plants with a 5% DDT dust or 5% chlordane dust.

Mites: 5% malathion dust or 25% malathion wettable powder, 2 tablespoons per gallon of water.

Plant Lice: Use Malathion as a dust or spray or 40 nicotine sulfate 1/2 tablespoon full per gallon water.

Slugs: Apply a prepared methaldehyde bait. On dry ground hydrated lime will act as a barrier. Remove leaves, trash and other protection from the border of garden and vicinity of plants to be protected. Tomato Blight: Zineb or Maneb are most effective materials. However, basic coppers are also effective. Use two tablespoons full per gallon water. Start when tomatoes set on and apply four or five sprays at 10 day intervals.

Take the wheel...
Get the Swept-Wing feel!

You be the judge!

On curves—Compare the sway-free, vibration-free ride you get with Dodge Torsion-Aire, standard equipment, in all models. Compare Dodge Full-Time Power Steering with other types that "out in and out." You be the judge!

In traffic—Compare the ease and simplicity of Dodge Push-Button Torque-Flite. A touch of a button controls all driving ranges. Compare the greater visibility in a Dodge from every angle—front, sides and rear. You be the judge!

In the rough—Compare the way Dodge Oriflow Shock Absorbers, a rugged box-section frame and thick rubber cushions, soak up the bumps. Compare the sure stops you get with new-design Total-Contact Brakes. You be the judge!

There's a big difference in this Swept-Wing 58 Dodge and other cars on the road. A big and wonderful difference in the way it rides, handles and responds. That's why you really should "Take the wheel... Get the Swept-Wing feel!" before you decide on any new 1958 car. Actually take a Dodge and drive it yourself. Compare it on any basis you want. You be the judge. Just name the time and we'll turn over the keys.

What some folks don't seem to know is that some school marm that is so unmercifully persecuted by being called old maids of Bachelor Ladies from choice. They learned in their youth that God's essence of Beauty is woman and they had sense enough to not sell love too cheap. So they just didn't buy or sell.

One nice marm driving to her school recently gave a feller a lift in her car. He was a quiet kind of guy who settled in his seat with contentment. Next morning this marm gave the quiet guy's father a lift and here goes with the conversation.

He-How old are you? (A question no man is to ever ask a lady).

She-fifty one.
He-Now I got a boy forty-four and I tells him how he needs a woman 'bout forty-five, fifty or city even. Who teaches school so she can help him make a good livin, and he needs a good car to go backwards and forwards to his work in. Is looks like a fine car you got.
